

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Preface	v
Acknowledgements	vii
List of abbreviations	xi
Table of contents	xvii
INTRODUCTION	3
1 Terrorism and the law	4
1.1 The notion of ‘terrorism’	5
1.2 Scope and limitations of the examined law: anti-terror legislation and human rights	7
1.2.1 The ECHR	8
1.2.2 Domestic human rights protection	10
1.3 The paradox of terrorism, counter-terrorism and human rights	21
2 Purpose and aim	23
3 Methodology	26
3.1 The historical approach – justification and methods	27
3.1.1 Methods	28
3.1.2 Scope of the historical overview	28
3.1.3 Relevance of the research	30
3.2 The comparative criminal law approach	30
3.2.1 Some preliminary remarks on comparative research	30
3.2.2 Relevance of the comparative research	31
3.2.3 The object of comparison: national anti-terror legislation	33
	xvii

3.2.4 Applied test for compatibility with human rights: national and European case-law, academic writings	34
3.2.5 Justification for selecting the UK, Spain, France, and Germany	35
3.2.6 Limitations in comparative law	38
4 Summary: Research questions and structure of the study	41

PART 1

CONCEPTUALISATION OF TERRORISM FROM A HISTORICAL PERSPECTIVE

CHAPTER 1

EXAMPLES OF TERRORISM BEFORE 1793 49

1.1 Antiquity – terrorist behaviour in the Bible?	49
1.2 The roman age	50
1.3 Zealots (A. D. 66-70)	51
1.4 Assassins (A. D. 1090-1256)	51
1.5 Indian Thugs	53
1.6 Gunpowder Plot (1605)	53
1.7 Summary	54

CHAPTER 2

TERRORIST MOVEMENTS AFTER THE FRENCH REVOLUTION 55

2.1 Robespierre’s reign of terror (1793-4)	55
2.2 Terrorism and anarchism in the second half of the nineteenth century	57
2.3 Early nationalist and anti-colonial groups	61
2.3.1 Ireland	61
2.3.2 Serbia	63
2.3.3 India	64
2.4 Liberation movements after World War II	65
2.4.1 Palestine / Israel	66
2.4.2 Cyprus	69
2.4.3 South Africa	70
2.5 The beginning of contemporary terrorism: ideological left-wing terrorism	71

2.5.1	Brigate Rosse	71
2.5.2	Communist Combatant Cells	73
2.6	Summary	73
CHAPTER 3
TERRORISM COMMITTED OR SUPPORTED BY THE STATE		77
3.1	State terrorism in the twentieth century	78
3.1.1	Russia's (soviet) terror regimes	78
3.1.2	Fascist movements	81
3.1.3	Chile and Argentina	88
3.1.4	Systematic terror under Mao Tse Tung	90
3.2	Vigilante terrorism: death squads in Central America and Colombia	93
3.2.1	El Salvador	94
3.2.2	Guatemalan mass killings	95
3.2.3	The Contras in Nicaragua	96
3.2.4	Colombia: Drug cartels and death squads	97
3.2.5	Death squads elsewhere	97
3.3	Wartime terrorism	98
3.4	Summary	99
CHAPTER 4
TERRORIST MOVEMENTS WITH DIRECT IMPACT ON LEGISLATION OF THE UK, SPAIN, GERMANY AND FRANCE		101
4.1	United Kingdom	101
4.2	Spain	104
4.3	Germany	108
4.4	France	111
4.5	The 'new global threat': international Islamic terrorism (1980s until present)	114
4.6	Summary	120
Excursus: Other religions as motivators for contemporary terrorism		123

CHAPTER 5

CONCLUSIONS OF PART 1	125
5.1 Conceptualisation of terrorism – a definition?	125
5.2 Lessons learnt or why we should not reduce human rights when fighting terrorism	128

PART 2

A NATIONAL AND HISTORICAL COMPARISON OF ANTI-TERROR LEGISLATION

CHAPTER 6

ANTI-TERROR LEGISLATION IN THE UK	135
6.1 Introduction	135
6.2 Relevant legal sources	136
6.3 Anti-terror legislation prior to September 11 th	137
6.3.1 Early special laws	137
6.3.2 Beginning of the ‘Troubles’	138
6.3.3 Special legislation in Northern Ireland	138
6.3.4 Wider powers of arrest, extended detention, and derogations under the ECHR	142
6.3.5 Internment and in-depth interrogations	146
6.3.6 Direct rule	147
6.3.7 PTA’s and exclusion orders	148
6.3.8 Proscribed organisations	150
6.3.9 Supergrasses	151
6.3.10 ‘Shoot to kill’ policy and the right to life	152
6.3.11 Inferences from the silence of the accused	154
6.3.12 Repeal of the (Northern Ireland) Emergency Provisions Act 1978 following ECtHR rulings	156
6.3.13 Developments in the 1990s	158
6.3.14 Human Rights Act 1998, Terrorism Act 2000, and Regulations of Investigatory Powers Act 2000	160
6.4 Post September 11 th anti-terror legislation	166
6.4.1 Anti-Terrorism, Crime and Security Act 2001	166

6.4.2	Admissibility of evidence obtained by torture	167
6.4.3	Criminal Justice Act 2003	168
6.4.4	Prevention of Terrorism Act 2005	170
6.4.5	Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005	172
6.4.6	Terrorism Act 2006	172
6.4.7	Racial and Religious Hatred Act 2006	174
6.4.8	Justice and Security (Northern Ireland) Act 2007	175
6.5	Current developments	175
6.6	Summary	177
6.6.1	Main developments	177
6.6.2	General observations	181
CHAPTER 7
ANTI-TERROR LEGISLATION IN SPAIN		183
7.1	Introduction	183
7.2	Relevant legal sources	185
7.3	Anti-terror legislation prior to September 11 th	188
7.3.1	Early anti-terror laws: Era Franco	188
7.3.2	Transition to democracy	192
7.3.3	Spanish Constitution of 1978 and first years of democracy	194
7.3.4	Legislative activity in 1980 and 1981	197
7.3.5	The 1980s	199
7.3.6	The 1990s	209
7.4	Post September 11 th anti-terror legislation	216
7.4.1	Prohibition of political parties	216
7.4.2	Implementation of EU and international law	217
7.4.3	Abbreviated proceedings	218
7.4.4	Legislative activism in 2003	219
7.4.5	Improvement of detention on remand (prisión provisional)	223
7.4.6	Torture allegations in Strasbourg	226
7.4.7	11 th March ('11-M') attacks on Madrid trains	227

7.5	Current developments	229
7.6	Summary	230
7.6.1	Main developments	230
7.6.2	General observations	233

CHAPTER 8

ANTI-TERROR LEGISLATION IN GERMANY	237
8.1	Introduction	237
8.2	Relevant legal sources	238
8.3	Anti-terror legislation prior to September 11 th	240
8.3.1	Significant Acts adopted against the RAF	240
8.3.2	The 1980s: Privacy constraints and leniency	253
8.3.3	Fin de siècle of privacy? Combat of organised crime and terrorism combined	258
8.4	Post September 11 th anti-terror legislation	265
8.4.1	Security Package I	266
8.4.2	Security Package II	267
8.4.3	More grid search and ‘forefront investigations’ under police law	271
8.4.4	More (mobile) telecommunication interception	273
8.4.5	Implementation of European law	273
8.4.6	Air Security Act	276
8.4.7	Anti-Terror Database and Completion of the Act for the Combat of Terrorism	277
8.4.8	Rulings of the German Federal Court of Justice concerning the Hamburg Cell	278
8.5	Current developments	280
8.6	Summary	284
8.6.1	Main developments	284
8.6.2	General observations	288

CHAPTER 9
ANTI-TERROR LEGISLATION IN FRANCE	291
9.1 Introduction	291
9.2 Relevant legal sources	292
9.3 Anti-terror legislation prior to September 11 th	294
9.3.1 Early anti-terror laws	294
9.3.2 Terrorism combat in the 1980s	297
9.3.3 Developments in the 1990s	303
9.3.4 Football World Cup and reinforcement of the presumption of innocence	313
9.4 Post September 11 th anti-terror legislation	313
9.4.1 Law no. 2001-1062 of 15 November 2001 on Daily Security	314
9.4.2 Laws adopted in 2002	317
9.4.3 Law no. 2003-239 of 18 March 2003 on Internal Security	317
9.4.4 Law no. 2004-204 of 9 March 2004 to Adapt Justice to the Evolutions of Criminality	319
9.4.5 London Bombings of 2005 and urban riots in Paris’ banlieus	323
9.4.6 Solitary confinement decrees	326
9.4.7 Criticism from Strasbourg for extensive detention and violations of the fair trial principle	326
9.5 Current developments	328
9.6 Summary	331
9.6.1 Main developments	331
9.6.2 General observations	333

PART 3

COMPARISON AND ANALYSIS

CHAPTER 10

RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN A TERRORIST ATTACK AND SUBSEQUENT LEGISLATION	341
---	------------

CHAPTER 11

CHARACTERISTICS OF ANTI-TERROR LAWS	343
--	------------

11.1 General characteristics	343
11.1.1 Human rights implications	343
11.1.2 Other characteristics	348
11.2 Specificities of the different countries	353
11.2.1 United Kingdom	353
11.2.2 Spain	355
11.2.3 Germany	357
11.2.4 France	358

CHAPTER 12

GENERAL HISTORICAL EVOLUTION OF ANTI-TERROR LEGISLATION	361
--	------------

12.1 Common and diverging developments in the examined countries	361
12.2 Assessment of the impact of September 11 th	363

CHAPTER 13

HUMAN RIGHTS PROTECTION AND COUNTER-TERRORISM	365
--	------------

13.1 Comparison of domestic human rights protection	365
13.1.1 Some general comparative observations	365
13.1.2 Comparison of the cases decided with respect to counter-terror legislation	369
13.2 Impact of the ECHR and of Strasbourg's case law	373
13.2.1 The ECHR and the ECtHR's case law in the respective national legal systems	373

13.2.2	Comparison of ECtHR/EComHR cases in relation to counter-terrorism	374
13.2.3	Violations of the ECHR in relation to terrorist cases per Article	377
CHAPTER 14
SUMMARY		381
CONCLUSION		383
1	Summary	383
2	A Final Assessment and Outlook	384
EPILOGUE
THREE ESSENTIAL PROBLEMS		389
1	Torture and the ‘ticking bomb scenario’	389
2	Criminalisation of preparatory acts: How far can we go?	390
3	What to do with potential or convicted terrorists (e.g. sleepers)?	391
	Summary	393
	Bibliography	407
	Curriculum Vitae	439