Writing is sculpting with words. I have always enjoyed the process of writing. This enjoyment has been the common thread throughout my law studies and work. This research gave me the opportunity to combine my studies, working experience and personal interest. I am happy to express my appreciation and gratitude to the following persons.

I could not have carried out this research without my supervisor Professor Titia Loenen. Her involvement was invaluable to this research. I am thankful for her support and confidence. I much appreciated her insightfulness and working method. I am also much indebted to Dr. Susanne Burri. Her comments on this book were very helpful and supportive. Furthermore, my appreciation is extended to the members of the reading committee, Professor Eva Brems, Dr. Antoine Buyse, Professor Janneke Gerards, Professor Linda Senden and Professor Christa Tobler for reading my dissertation and providing their commentaries thereon.

This research was carried out at Utrecht University’s Netherlands Institute of Human Rights (SIM). It has been an excellent and inspiring environment to engage in research and write the book. I want to thank the Director of SIM, Professor Jenny Goldschmidt, for her support and involvement. I am further indebted to my other SIM colleagues, especially my fellow PhD candidates Ramona Biholar, Diana Contreras Garduno, Marie-Elske van Gispen, Masha Fedorova, Katherine Fortin, Jayshree Mangubhai, Brianne McGonigle Leyh, Hana van Ooijen, René Rouwette and Marthe Lot Vermeulen. It was not always an easy task to access materials from Ethiopia and the support of the SIM Librarians Saskia Bal and Maaike Hogenkamp made this easier. I am grateful for the assistance of Hanneke van Denderen, Esther Heldenbergh and Marcella Kiel. I am also grateful to Peter Morris for the English editing, Henk Zonneveld for his help with Refworks and Klaartje Hoeberechts for the layout. I am thankful for the support during my move to Ethiopia provided by Kathelijn Korver.

I benefitted a great deal from the experience I gained at the Council of State and the EU Agency of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. This experience contributed to my ambition to carry out this research and write this book.

In the summer of 2011 I moved to Addis Ababa, Ethiopia. The transition was enormous. The benefit of electricity and the internet for my computer was no longer an assumption. It was felt as a gift when there was “light”, as Ethiopians call it. The difficulties required me to be flexible and resulted in unexpected solutions. Who would have known that I could attach a car battery to my laptop so that I could work...
Acknowledgements

I want to thank the consultancy firm Fair & Sustainable Ethiopia, in particular Paul Weijers, for hosting me in their office. The working environment accommodated the lonely feeling of writing this book in Ethiopia. I have been blessed with a cheerful group of friends in Ethiopia.

I am grateful that I have such good friends, in particular Maartje Hensen, Imke Hoefnagels, Samantha van Os, Nicole Ganzevles-Verwiel, Allard Ganzevles, Frodo van Oostveen, Hanke Verspaget, Tanja Oele-Essers, Wim Oele, Lukas van den Heuvel, Christie Veldhuizen and Sjoerd Gallmann. I want to devote special consideration to my late friend Marieke van den Heuvel-Wessels, who taught me to enjoy life every day. Her strength, humour and perseverance have been an enormous inspiration to me.

I am deeply indebted to my parents Maarten and Joke Speekenbrink for always being there for me. I am thankful for my brother Thomas Speekenbrink and Anne-Marie Broekhuisen. Further, I want to thank Bertus and Berna Haverkort, Annegien and Wouter Dessing, Teun Haverkort and Yvon Muller for their support.

Finally, I want to express my gratefulness, respect and acknowledgement to my husband Harm Haverkort. I thank him for his unconditional love and support. I could not have written this dissertation without his continuous patience, encouragement and positivity. This book is dedicated to Harm and our beautiful son Teun.
