ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

We are immensely grateful to the many people who have contributed, in various ways, to this volume of the Yearbook. First, we would like to thank Andrea Coomber (INTERIGHTS, International Centre for the Protection of Human Rights) who took the lead in authoring the review on the work of the Council of Europe. We are also very grateful to Colm O’Cinneide (University College London), who contributed to this section of the review, and to Dalindyebo Shabalala (Maastricht University), who contributed the section on the proposed Treaty on Copyright Exceptions and Limitations for Persons with Visual Impairments at the World Intellectual Property Organization, found in the review of the work of other European Intergovernmental Organizations and Civil Society Groups. We would also like to express other thanks to Anna Lawson (Leeds University) who assisted with the editing of the section on the review of the work of the Council of Europe, and Janina Arsenjeva (European Disability Forum), who provided us with useful feedback on the review of work of the European Union. We are grateful to Laura Visser (student assistant, Maastricht University) who ensured that all the papers were compliant with the Yearbook’s style sheet and, in particular, Karen Walsh (NUI Galway) who took the lead in drafting all remaining sections on the review and provided invaluable assistance and support throughout the production of this volume. Lastly, we express our thanks to the authors who contributed articles to this volume, the anonymous peer reviewers who help us to ensure the quality of the articles published, and members of our editorial and advisory boards.
